Morgan Influence Strengthens Securities

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—With the Morgan influence back in the securities underwriting field, Wall Street investment experts expect an increase in the value and importance of corporate financing.

For many months the volume of new securities created has grown steadily, and so far this year new issues of around $2,000,000,000 have actually been registered with the federal securities and exchange commission.

And before this year is over, SEC officials predict, the total registration will exceed the three billion mark.

Eventually, analysts believe, a flood of new money will be raised in the securities markets to go into expansion of industrial plants and creation of greater production facilities.

Formation of Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc., by partners in J. P. Morgan & Company and Drexel & Company of Philadelphia, a Morgan branch, was seen in Wall Street as recognition by these bankers of the growing importance of the new securities field.

Ready To Tow Auto When Owner Arrived

Solomon Dubin of West Chestnut Street Left Car on North Street During Fireworks Display—Other Cases in Police Court Today.

Solomon Dubin of 35 West Chestnut street drove to Kingston Point Saturday night to watch the big fireworks display, and left his car parked on North street where it blocked traffic. The traffic officer on duty there when he could not locate Dubin sent in a call to a garage for a tow car but Dubin showed up just before the tow car arrived, and was arrested.

This morning in police court Sergeant Charles Phinney explained to Judge Walter H. Gill that Dubin had been warned by the traffic officer not to park on the street and that when the officer came around again he found the car left parked in such a manner as to obstruct traffic. The sergeant said that the tow charge was $2 but it would have been $5 if Dubin had not appeared before the car was towed away.

Dubin, who was not present in court was represented by an attorney who said that Dubin was willing to pay the tow charge of $2. Judge Gill said he would take that fact in consideration and would make the fine $3.

Charles Lichtenstein of Brooklyn, arrested for speeding 42 miles an hour on Albany avenue, forfeited $10 cash by failure to appear in court.

John Savino of Lyndhurst, N. J., arrested for not being able to produce a certificate of registration for the car he was driving, received a suspended sentence.

Kendall Every of O'Neill street, arrested for failing to stop for the stop sign at Broadway and Cedar street, was fined $2.

David Smith of Newburgh, arrested for not being able to produce the necessary driving papers, received a suspended sentence.

Benjamin Miller and Solomon Mack, two negroes from Red Hook, arrested for public intoxication at the S. & C. Lunch on East Strand, were fined $2 each.

Australia now has, proportionately, more movie theatres than any other country in the world.

Douglas Airliner In Minor Accident

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Its left wing crumpled and a propeller badly bent, a giant Douglas airliner rested in the Municipal Airport hangars today after a minor crash that frightened 3,500 air race fans more than it did the ship's 14 passengers and crew of three.

Taking off late yesterday on the second half of its Chicago to Newark run, the huge ship swerved in a ground loop when its port motor balked as Pilot Ted Howe of Chicago tried to lift it after a speedy dash down the runway.

As the fans attending the annual Buffalo air races watched the left wing struck the ground, part of the undercarriage collapsed and the port propeller scraped itself crooked in the turf.

Howe brought the ship to a quick stop and all aboard debarked slightly shaken up but without injury. They continued the journey in another plane.

Niagara Falls Brink Scene of Man's Rescue

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Battiste Sechi, 46, a paper worker, today had the distinction of being the second person to be rescued from the brink of the falls in the last 35 years.

Swept by the swift current of the river to the edge of the precipice, Sechi was hauled to safety yesterday by two Erie, Pa., brothers, Andrew and John Beshorski.

Chief Tracey G. Levee of the State Reservation Police said the brothers reported Sechi threw himself in the stream above Prospect Point and was swept toward the cataract.

At the brink, they said, the water was so shallow he became marooned with one foot dangling over the edge. Cautiously they crept out eight feet from the point, placed a rope about the man and hauled him ashore. Police sent him to a hospital.

Pouring Concrete On East Chester Street

The work of pouring the first strip of concrete on the East Chester street by-pass to 9-W was started this morning by the contractor, who is building the road. The center strip is being laid first, and work started at Broadway and East Chester street. Work on this new road is progressing. There has been considerable rock encountered in building the road.

New Era League.

The Women's New Era League of the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street, will hold its regular meeting Tuesday, September 10, instead of Wednesday as usual. The change is due to the holding of the flower show. The meeting will be held in the chapel and all women of the church are invited.

Incinerating Plant Is Now Operating

Superintendent David Conway of the Board of Public Works stated today that the city incinerating plant, which was constructed as work relief project and turned over to the city when completed the first of the month, was now in daily operation from 7 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, except on Mondays and Fridays when the plant was kept operating until 9 o'clock at night.

Superintendent Conway urges merchants who have been accustomed to trucking their burnable material to the city dumps to have it delivered at the incinerating plant between the hours stated while the plant is operating.

Householders are also urged to keep their ashes in separate containers and that all burnable material including old boxes, papers and tin cans be placed in separate containers so that they can be burned at the incinerator.

Court of Appeals Reconvenes Today

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—The Court of Appeals, New York state's highest judicial tribunal, reconvenes today after a recess since July 11.

Only four cases remained on the docket over the recess. One of these, in which decision was expected shortly, possibly today, involves the constitutionality of the recently enacted statute creating a state mortgage commission. This was attacked by Anna Oberhammer of White Plains on the ground the state Constitution prohibits the mortgage commission from "any act divesting certificate holders of property rights."

Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley on July 3 upheld the constitutionality of the mortgage commission law, and an appeal was taken to the Court of Appeals.

Last week Paul Weslock, 18, of Easton, Pa., and Nicholas Homoki, 18, of Stockertown, Pa., arrested here on charges of vagrancy, and Cyril Area, 21, of Ballston Spa, also picked up on a vagrancy charge, had the imposition of sentence postponed until this morning in police court. The adjournment was taken last week in order that the local police might receive an answer to teletype messages sent to the home towns of the boys. As a result of the messages the families of the three boys came to Kingston over the week-end and the boys were turned over to them.

Capital Scoffers Now Recall Long's Charge Of A Plot To Kill Him

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP).—A national capital which often had scoffed at Senator Huey P. Long's assertion that his foes were out to shoot him was startled today to learn that it had been done.

Some in the capital had been inclined to laugh at the bodyguards that the Louisiana senator always had near him in Washington and at home, and called it "more demagoguery." "Most unfortunate," was the immediate reaction of Senator Thomas (D-Utah) who began his career in the senate by presiding over an investigation into one of the many charges of political skulduggery which had been laid at Long's door.

Long's successful campaign for the election to the senate of his close political ally, John Overton, brought an investigation over which Thomas presided two years ago.

"I had first hand acquaintance with the tense feelings and almost mob desires expressed by partisans on both sides when I presided in the Overton hearing two years ago," Thomas said.

While the Utah senator, one of the few members of congress remaining in Washington, attributed the shooting to the "act of an irresponsible and thoughtless person," he warned against further difficulties.

"Shooting always invites more shooting," Thomas said. "It can not bring better conditions. The American system of recall is to use ballots and not bullets."

Not only did the capital laugh but even Senator Long laughed when a month ago, August 9, he read to the senate a long report of what he said was a plot to shoot him "right in the senate."

The "plot," the Louisiana senator said, was discussed in a room of the Hotel De Soto in New Orleans July 22 and 24. Two of his friends heard the scheme through a sound recording device extended into an adjoining room, Long related.

By their voices assertedly a dozen men were identified as coming to the conference at various times but the voice making the threats was never recognized.

Long Was Jocular
Long himself discredited the seriousness of the plot by jokingly telling the senate that he "got a new lease on life" when others in the conference room put aside any talk of assassination as unfeasible. Then he went on to tell how he "shivered" in a hotel room at night when he read the transcript of what he said was taken down by the sound recording device.

"I would draw in a lottery to go out and kill Long," the "voice" was quoted as saying. "It would take only one man, one gun and one bullet."

Long laughed, and some of the senators laughed.

Long made enemies in the senate, but they battled him with words and not infrequently chided him for his precaution in traveling about the city always with a bodyguard of one or more men. Reputedly his guards often sat in the gallery to keep a watchful eye on him and one time a Long associate was searched in public by the sergeant at arms, Chesley Journey. No weapon was found.

By plane and by train Long shuttled back and forth between Louisiana and Washington during the past session. He was an attraction for visitors and any announcement that he planned to speak—and such announcements were frequent—brought crowds.

It was Long who brought the session to a close August 26 with a sensational filibuster that blocked passage of the third deficiency bill carrying funds for such important news agencies as the social security boards and the Gaffey coal act board.

He became a foe of the administration and launched such bitter attacks that frequently he was roundly criticized for personal remarks about the President.

3,042 NRA Employees.
Washington, Sept. 9 (AP).—The skeletonized NRA, which is seeking to pave the way for the new industrial control legislation at the next session of congress, reported today it has 3,042 employees and a payroll of about $650,000 a month. Officials said this compared with a force of 5,547 and a monthly payroll of $984,346 at the time the supreme court killed the NRA codes.

Huey Long Badly Wounded By Bullet

but with eyes showing evidence of weeping, she left the hospital room and said:

He told me "I may not come back, but I'll die fighting."

On the way to the hospital, O'Connor disclosed, Long quietly said, in the taxi cab:

"I wonder why he shot me."

Weiss' relatives also pondered this question. One of the bills before the special session it was reported, would "Gerrymander" Judge Pavy's district.

The Doctor's mother, when she heard of her son's death, said "Oh, God, we've been opposed to Long but I didn't think he would do a thing like that."

A. J. Pavy, of Opelousas, a brother-in-law of Weiss, told the Associated Press the Senator's assailant "was a calm and deliberate man, although somewhat high strung."

Weiss was graduated from Tulane University Medical school in 1927, did post graduate work in Vienna and served his internship in the American Hospital in Paris. In December, 1933 he married Miss Louise Yvonne Pavy, daughter of the Jurist.

In the Tulane class prophecy, at his graduation, it was said of Weiss: "With knowledge a plenty and friends galore, he is bound to go out and make the world take notice."

Assassination Planned.
Dr. Weiss, apparently, had thoroughly planned his attempt to assassinate Long.

Two Baton Rouge persons who were in the state house witnessing the proceedings of the special session—Fred Watkins and N. A. Shelton—said they saw Weiss lurking in a corridor near the office of Governor Allen.

They said Weiss muttered as they passed:

"It won't be long now."

The news of the attempt on Long's life brought from the Rev. Gerald K. Smith, national organizer of the Senator's "Share-the-Wealth" Clubs, a plea for all members of the society "to spend at least five minutes a day in prayer."

The bullet fired by Weiss ended the estrangement of years' standing between the Senator and his brother, Dr. George S. Long, a Tulsa dentist.

He ended a hunting trip and hastened to his brother's bedside.

Long Lived in Fear.
There was no denying the Senator was in fear of such attempts, albeit political opponents frequently scoffed at the size of the bodyguard.

These guards were in appearance with the Senator, everywhere, except on the floor of the United States Senate. They accompanied him on his frequent trips to New York and stood guard in the foyer of his hotel suite.

The bodyguards—two of the best known of them were Joe Messina and Murphy Roden—generally strode beside the Senator or in the rear. Seldom did they precede him.

They walked beside him last night. Thus Dr. Weiss had a clear field to approach the Senator.

Long was en route to the office of Governor Allen when he was shot. Smith preceded Long to the governor's office.

"As I reached the door of the governor's reception room I turned in," he said. "Just as I stepped across the threshold of the door, I heard Senator Long cry out loudly. I knew instantly it was his voice."

"In a split second I heard a shot; I whirled and then heard repeated shots. I saw Murphy Roden fire shots into the body of a man on the floor whom I did not recognize."

The body of Weiss lay on the floor of the capital corridor for more than an hour. The crowd surged around it for many minutes until police could clear the building.

Weiss Identified.
The identification of Weiss was made by the coroner, Dr. Thomas Bird, and Joe W. Bates, assistant superintendent of the State Bureau of Identification.

Senator Long has personally directed the previous special sessions of this Legislature—they have been seven in the last 12 months. His administrative aides this morning said this session would go on, despite the attempt on the senator's life.

The program is in the hands of Governor Allen and Lieut. Governor James Noe. It is doubly designed, first to lessen the influence of the "Kinkfish" Louisiana foes; and second, to ward off any federal influence on Long's state.

The senator has been at odds with the Roosevelt administration since shortly after Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration.

It was the lieutenant governor who gave the blood for the early morning transfusion.

When physicians announced a transfusion was necessary, hundreds of persons offered their blood. Examinations of many were made and the physicians chose Noe.

Roosevelt's Statement.
Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt deplored the "spirit of violence" today in "expressing his regret" at the attempt upon the life of Senator Long, of Louisiana.

Mr. Roosevelt issued the following statement:

"I deeply regret the attempt made upon the life of Senator Long, of Louisiana. The spirit of violence is un-American and has no place in a consideration of public affairs, least of all at a time when calm and dispassionate approach to the difficult problems of the day is so essential."

Senator Long has been one of the severest critics of the administration and had indicated an intention to run for president next year against Mr. Roosevelt.

The President was sleeping last night when word of the shooting reached him. He dictated a statement today after reading the morning newspapers.

It was learned that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt sent a personal message to Mrs. Long. This was not made public.

100 Postal Employees Enjoy Banquet Held By Local Association

Saturday night more than 100 postal employees gathered at the Eagle Hotel, Main street, for the annual meeting and banquet of the Kingston Postal Employees Association. The assemblage represented nine cities and villages in this area along the Hudson river and was the largest of its kind ever held in this vicinity.

Principal speakers were David Monroe of New York city, publicity director of the state branch of the United National Association of Post Office clerks; William R. Kraft, postmaster of Kingston; William C. DeWitt, former postmaster and Augustus Raschke, who retired from the service about a year ago after carrying mail for approximately 40 years.

Anthony J. Erena, president of the local association, and chairman of Saturday's affair, turned the meeting over to John P. Clarke, superintendent of the downtown postoffice, after the banquet, and as toastmaster this veteran of the postal service proved as efficient as he is in his work for Uncle Sam.

He started his honored task by reading a telegram from James A. Farley, postmaster general. The message stated he deeply regretted not being able to attend the meeting on account of official business and expressed best wishes for continued success.

Introducing the head of the local postal service, Toastmaster Clarke presented him as "William R. Kraft, the best postmaster in the United States and a jolly good fellow". As Mr. Kraft arose, the gathering stood and sang "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" accompanied by Dan Bittner at the piano. Paul Zucca, well known orchestra conductor, led the singers.

Postmaster Kraft praised his men by saying he has received the "greatest cooperation from top to bottom since taking over the job, and wants to carry the friendship throughout his term."

He told how as a boy he trailed Gus Raschke over the mail route in his neighborhood and expressed regret at the veteran's retirement prior to his appointment to the postmastership. "I have known most of you men for a long time, too, and want to feel like one of you," he said to the group.

Speaking of his job, Postmaster Kraft, "I'd rather cut off my right arm than give a demerit. But sometimes this must be done. I don't make the regulations. After all, they are for the good of the service and must be lived up to."

"If I get the kind of cooperation that I'm receiving now, I can leave when my term is up and honestly say that I had the pleasure of working with the best postoffice force in the United States," he told the men.

Gus Raschke, when he was introduced, spoke in a reminiscent vein. "It's nice to retire," he told the men. "But the checks come every 15 days instead of 30". Then he went on to say how long he'd known "Bill" Kraft and his brother from the time of their childhood and how they accompanied him on his route.

"I miss the people on my old route," he went on, "and my associates in the post office. I feel better for having been in the service and enjoying the friendships made."

The gray haired veteran reminisced about his days as a mailman, recalling that one winter back in the days of his youth he stopped in front of the Eagle Hotel and read the thermometer. "I hadn't felt the cold until I looked at it," he said. "The thermometer registered 21 below zero. From then on I thought I'd freeze."

"When I started in the postal service," continued Mr. Raschke, "we were getting $600 a year. Then it was raised to $850 and we thought that was something. We appreciate the increases and I hope your remuneration will be commensurate with the service you men give and that, you give the best that's in you."

William C. DeWitt, former postmaster, the next speaker, said of Mr. Raschke's talk that he never heard a more eloquent speech in all his years attending conventions of postmen, city, state and county officials and fraternal bodies.

"It was sincere and came right from the heart," he said. "I've heard them all from William Jennings Bryan right down the line through Teddy Roosevelt and those who came after him, and Gus's speech has inspired me more than any I've ever heard."

Speaking of his connections with the postal service, Mr. DeWitt said the same of the cooperation he received as did Mr. Kraft. He likened his experience to that of the postmaster also, saying he always had the ambition to become the head of the postal service. "As a boy when I played with my brothers in our attic on rainy days when we could not go out," he said, "I always was the postmaster, leaving them to be the bankers, etc. Thirty years after I realized this cherished ambition."

Concluding his talk he assured Mr. Kraft that the sterling cooperation he knows now will continue throughout his term and mean success for him. Happiness and prosperity for many years to come were his wishes to the postmen at the end of his remarks.

Mr. Monroe of the Grand Central terminal postal station in New York, advised the postmen to continue their cooperation in their work and in organization among themselves.

John F. McNally, formerly of East Kingston, who is employed as supervisor of Morgan Annex, New York city, here on a vacation, extended the best wishes of the men in his station to their brother postal workers here.

Greetings from Saugerties were extended by Charles T. Sickles, one of the first rural carriers in the country. He entered the service at about the same time as Mr. Clarke and Mr. Raschke.

Well wishes came from other towns and cities as Toastmaster Clarke called on representatives as follows: Joseph Havens, Poughkeepsie; John Leagus, Catskill; Eugene Brown and Joseph Hanson, Newburgh; Weston Barnum, Ellenville, and Vincent Dolan, of Hudson.

Out of Town Guests.
Those attending from other places in this section were as follows: Poughkeepsie—Louis Murray, Thomas Murray, John Kelly, Roy Seaman, Asa Knickerbocker, Robert Whiteford, Joseph Digilio, Terrence V. Lewis, A. C. Gilmore, Joseph Havens, William Sullivan.

Ellenville—Tuthill, McDowell, Harold Kappert, Arthur Wright, Catskill—John Leagus, Frank Vigelette, Rodney Bradford, Charles Lampman, Elmer Palmer.

Saugerties—Albert Cutler, Charles T. Sickles, Leon A. Smith, William E. Young, John O'Connor.

There was an entertainment program featuring John Wolf, "the one-man band" with accordion and harmonica; Joseph B. Kearney, son of Postman and Mrs. Joseph Kearney, who sang "Till My Cradle Days," "A Quarter to Nine," and "That Old Irish Mother of Mine"; Ray Farrells reciting "Lucky at the Wedding" and Charles Kelsie, accordionist.

Tony the Stinger Dies By Self-Hanging to End 'This Life of Hell'

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Anthony Cugino, Philadelphia gangster known as Tony the Stinger and accused of eight killings, hanged himself in his cell shortly before midnight to "end the life of hell."

A suicide note left for his pretty wife, Frances, tended to confirm a rumor that his arrest was brought by a tip from a girl he killed.

"P. S. Forgive Sally," was the end of the note on which he signed himself "Jim."

Cugino had been questioned for 15 hours. He denied seven of the slayings of which he was accused, but admitted the killing of patrolman Charles Stockberger in a payroll holdup of a Philadelphia glove factory on July 14, 1933.

Cugino was reputed to be the real leader of the Tri-state gang ostensibly led by Robert Mals and Walter Legenza, both of whom have been electrocuted.

He was accused along with Salvatore Serpa of killing Edward Wallace and John Zukowsky, associates in the Philadelphia payroll robbery, to avoid betrayal.

Wallace and Zukowsky, taken for a ride, were left for dead 12 miles out of Camden, N. J. Zukowsky recovered consciousness, hailed a motorist and was taken to a hospital. There he begged detectives to hurry to a rooming house and save two girls, Florence Miller and Ethel Greenberg.

Killed 2 Girls.
The detectives were too late. They found the girls had left with the two men answering the descriptions of Cugino and Serpa. Three weeks later the girls' bodies were found in a shallow grave in a cornfield at Downingtown, Pa. They had been shot.

Medical examination showed that one of them had been buried alive.

"My dear wife Frances," Cugino's note said, "Please do not worry and just try your best to be happy. I'm going to end this life of hell. I will meet you in the next world. Your husband, Jim."

Police accused the gangster of killing Serpa for the same reason that Wallace and Zukowsky were cut down. Serpa was found stabbed to death in Chicago on July 26, 1934. He was accused also of taking John Horn, a small-time Philadelphia racketeer, for a ride to Egg Harbor, N. J., late in 1933, because Horn was infatuated with the same girl.

Another killing in which he was suspected was that of Detective James J. Garvey of New York, who was shot to death on 76th street near Broadway on April 21, 1934.

He was indicted for the slaying of Anthony (Mucky) Zhang, who was shot to death in his New York apartment on August 7, 1934. Police said Zhang and Cugino were partners in counterfeiting, and that they quarreled over the spoils.

Authorities also believed that Cugino was the person who concealed two pistols in a baked turkey and sent it to Mals and Legenza when they were awaiting execution in prison at Richmond, Va. Mals and Legenza shot their way out of prison, killing a guard.

Cugino was arrested at 47th street and Broadway Saturday night by Philadelphia and New York detectives, who said they received a tip from some of his former associates. He had grown and waxed a mustache to conceal a scar on his upper lip. He used strips of his shirt to make the noise with which he killed himself.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION FLOWER SHOW WEDNESDAY

Two important items regarding the flower show and fall festival to be held by the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs at the Municipal Auditorium on Wednesday afternoon and evening, have to do with the naming of a seedling dahlia after our city, and the request for tiny flowers for miniature bouquets as favors.

Walter Ostrander of this city is presenting a seedling dahlia which will be named "City of Kingston."

Mayor Heiselman will accept the gift honoring the city in the name of the city.

Any one having very tiny blooms of any sort, such as would be of the right size for a miniature bouquet, is asked to send the same to the Municipal Auditorium Wednesday morning. If it is inconvenient to send them they are asked to telephone Mrs. Fraser—1543-W—who will arrange about getting them.

Last minute arrangements are being completed for this big flower show and exhibition of such very unusual character.

Edward L. Doheny Died Sunday Night

Los Angeles, Sept. 9. (AP)—Edward L. Doheny, multi-millionaire mids of the oil industry, is dead.

The 69-year-old ruler of an oil empire which once spread over portions of the entire western hemisphere, died at his Beverly Hills townhouse last night.

A chronic invalid for many months, his death was the result of a complication of diseases accentuated by his advanced age.

As a man who left a fortune in excess of $100,000,000, and whose philanthropies rolled into the hundreds of thousands, Doheny was one of the most picturesque figures in the history of oil.

Members of the immediate Doheny family—his widow, a daughter, Mrs. Leigh Battison, and his five grandchildren—were at the bedside when the end came.

While virtually in retirement, Doheny was president of the Petroleum Securities Corporation, his major holding, at the time of his death.

He won fame as the discoverer of vast oil resources, and notoriety as one of the key figures in oil reserve scandals of the Harding administration.

Attention centered on Doheny in connection with a senate probe of leases involving the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome naval reserves, which had been granted by Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior.

Doheny and Fall were indicted on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government in the transfer of the Elk Hills lease. Fall allegedly receiving $100,000 from his friend, Doheny, whereby operation of the Elk Hills field was turned over to the Doheny-controlled Pan-American Petroleum Company.

Fall was convicted and Doheny was acquitted.

Events Around The Empire State

Watertown, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Gwendolyn, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Elmer of Sackett Harbor, was dead today from a throat obstruction, although physicians could find nothing the youngster had swallowed.

She was playing, her parents said, when she began to choke and they thought she had swallowed some article. A physician was called and the girl was ordered taken to the hospital where she died last night about an hour after arriving. An autopsy was planned.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Charles Stark, 16, accidentally shot by a playmate four years ago, was dead today.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Stark, died in Hepburn Hospital last night where he had been since the mishap. The bullet had lodged in his spine and he had been paralyzed below the waist.

Catskill, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—A rat hunt in a barn near his home cost William Abb, 48, a leader in the building trades union circles, his life. He set his gun on the floor of the barn as he lit his pipe yesterday and the gun accidentally was discharged. Coroner Mahlon H. Atkinson gave a verdict of accidental death.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Raymond Seymour, 29, said by police to have been a pal of Vincent De Aoun, dapper gunman who was slain by police in a West Orange, N. J., night club early in the summer, was held today in connection with the attempted holdup of a filling station. He was implicated in the holdup, police said, by Fred Webber, who was shot and wounded by police as he fled the scene of the holdup. A youth, Edward Trimmer, 18, also was arrested yesterday.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—An investigation was started today in connection with the death of Frank Benschooten, 22, one-time honor student at Manlius School and former resident of Rome, who was found dead in his room yesterday from a bullet wound. Young Benschooten wrote a book on Indian relics and excavations when he was 14 and won honors in his studies, military science and athletics while at Manlius. His mother said he had been despondent because he could not find a job.

Making good-colored catsup or chili sauce is simple if a few precautions are observed and here are some suggestions. Select fine, red ripe tomatoes rather than dull stock. Individual tastes should determine the prices used, but avoid cloves, allspice and black pepper because they darken the catsup. In their place use cayenne pepper and paprika and other spices which, used in the proper combination, give an excellent flavored catsup. Add the salt, sugar, and vinegar near the end of the cooking so as not to cause darkening of the catsup or loss of vinegar during the boiling. Boil rapidly in a large open kettle so as to thicken the catsup as quickly as possible. Prolonged boiling darkens catsup, especially if sugar is present.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By Associated Press

HIS EXCELLENCY--

The Governor of New York

New York state's governor, Herbert H. Lehman, gave up a $2,000,000 a year job when he entered politics in 1928 under the wing of President Roosevelt, then governor. Serving all connections with his vast business enterprises, he became lieutenant governor that year and has been in the state service ever since. . . . First lieutenant governor in nearly 30 years to succeed to the governorship, he is now in his second term. . . . 57 years old, he has been a textile manufacturer, investment banker, director in a dozen corporations, educator, social worker, colonel in the army, assistant secretary of war and labor mediator. . . . there seems to be no end to his energy.

He often plugs away at his desk far into the night, frequently jumping up to walk nervously up and down the floor in deep thought. . . . He takes his job very seriously. . . . seldom leaves Albany except on a week-end, and then only in the summer. He has a home in New York city and at Purchase, Westchester county, where he "gets together" with his wife and three children. He's fond of fishing and golf, but has little time for either.

PORT EWEN SCOUTS TAKING NO TEAM SOLICITATIONS

Port Ewen, Sept. 9.—This year in compliance with the rules and regulations of scouting, no member of Troop 26, Port Ewen, has been authorized or permitted to solicit through any type of raffle whatsoever for basketball suits or any part thereof or any other equipment. Cooperation by the refusal to comply with any solicitors with the request will be sincerely appreciated by the scoutmaster, scout committee and scout headquarters. We thank the public for their sincere interest and helpfulness. The order is from the Rev. Philip Goertz, scoutmaster.

And what will happen to those Italian soldiers of fortune in East Africa if Fuzzy-Wuzzy of the Sudan takes a notion to go after them?

Face Fate With Pretty Faces

New York—Sol J. Lupoff, a passenger on the liner Dixie which stranded on a reef off the coast of Florida, came back with mingled feelings about women.

What puzzled Mr. Lupoff was that the women were scared as they were awkward life belts and braced themselves against slipping furniture—but they continued to dab their noses with powder and apply lipstick.

Conscience Strikes

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Earl L. Ciccerone has been released from prison where he was serving a four year term for conviction of auto theft.

William Wallace, a friend who said he was conscience-stricken, confessed the theft.

Equal Rights

Salamanca, N. Y.—Sixteen men, including football players, post-graduate and upper classmen, wanted to take the domestic science course at Salamanca High School. The superintendent of schools said the domestic science classes were too crowded.

Idaho Harvest

Salmon, Idaho—Farmer Shane Brown was irrigating an alfalfa field and thinking his harvest season still was some weeks away. Suddenly the water ceased to flow in the small ditch.

A 20-pound salmon, dipped by the bucket of a water wheel in the edge of the Salmon river, had become lodged in the small ditch, damming the flow.

The salmon was caught by Farmer Brown, after a struggle.

One Story Up, One Down

Chicago—There's only one story involved in this affair of two weddings.

Recently Betty Ennarino, her brother, Thomas, and their parents moved into a first floor apartment. They met the Capra family who lives in the apartment above them.

September 29 Betty will move up one flight when she becomes the bride of Anthony Capra. Anthony's sister, Rose, will move downstairs the same day as the bride of Thomas Ennarino.

LYONSVILLE

Lyonsville, Sept. 9.—School reopened on Tuesday for another season with Miss Betty Holt as teacher.

Mrs. Peter L. Davis spent a couple of days with her son and family of Kyserville.

Mrs. Orr Christiansa, who has been very ill, is getting along nicely.

Mrs. Floyd V. Davis entertained callers on Thursday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Charley Smith spent Friday afternoon out of town.

Most children take interest in their clothes. They like to put them on alone. They love to be self-dependent individuals.

Mothers should stimulate this interest by choosing "self-help" garments, as the dress patterned for today. It opens down the front, so daughter can slip into it without any assistance. It's nice carried out in woollens or wool-like cottons.

Style No. 5385 is designed for sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material with 1/4 yard of 35-inch contrasting and 1/4 yards of ribbon for bow.

HOME INSTITUTE BOOKLET WILL HELP

MAKE SMART SLIP COVERS FOR YOUR CHAIRS

Making slip covers isn't difficult, even for a wing chair like the one in our sketch. Some sturdy, pre-shrunk material makes the best cover for a chair that gets hard use. And bound seams (the easiest kind to make) give a tailored finish.

Note that back and seat—in our large illustration—are in one piece. Fit and cut this piece first after removing the cushion. Lay material (right side out) against back. Be sure to center the design. Pin material down along top seam of chair, then down sides between wing arms and back. Cut two inches outside of pin lines to allow for seams as shown in large sketch.

Now smooth material over seat, allowing three or four inches for tuck-in between back and seat (top left diagram). Pin material along sides of seat and across front edge. Cut off material two inches outside of pins. The middle diagram shows the front strip, or "apron," pinned in place.

Pinning Arm and Wing Pieces

In lower left diagram, the pieces for arms and for the wings have been added. Note darts at front of arms. In cutting arm pieces, allow two inches for tuck-in between arms and seat. This diagram also shows how to cut front blocks of the arms, and the front and side blocks of wings. First you make paper patterns of these sections, then cut material according to patterns. The back and sides are added last. The cover for the seat cushion is made from two straight pieces cut to fit top and bottom and joined by a narrow strip the depth of cushion.

Before stitching on the machine, baste sections carefully together and give a final fitting. Trim seam edges. Finish with binding.

Succulent, Healthful Tomato
Has An Interesting HistoryHundred Years Ago Tomatoes Were Regarded Only
As Ornamental Plants

By PETER G. TEN EYCK

Commissioner, Department of Agriculture and Markets
Albany, New York

WITH self-ripened tomatoes now on our markets—tomatoes grown here in New York State and offered for sale only a few hours after picking—the strange story of this rich, red fruit comes to the front with striking interest. The odd part of tomato history lies in the fact that its present popularity dates back less than 100 years. This native of western South America was introduced into cultivation in Europe as early as the 16th century but Europeans viewed the wrinkled fruits with suspicion and disfavor. In its new growing area the tomato was looked upon merely as a garden ornament.

Plant-Breeders Score

Both yellow and red-fruited sorts were known in the 18th century, but it was not until the middle of the 19th century that decided improvement was made in the form of the fruit. At the dawn of the 19th century, the fruits were used to a negligible extent for pickles and preserves but less for other purposes. Credit for the development to today's form and popularity must go to the plant-breeders. Under their care, wrinkles have been eliminated. Perfect methods of canning have come into existence.

The new crop now on the markets has the full flavor not developed by the greenhouse type. More than that, tomatoes that have been picked green and ripened in the markets are less juicy than those ripened on the vine. Therefore the very best for fresh table use are to be had from the home-grown crop.

How To Buy

Consumers will do well to bear in mind that tomatoes of good quality are mature, firm but not over-ripe, fairly well formed, plump, smooth, of good color and free from blemish. There are many defects in tomatoes which are serious only from the standpoint of waste in preparing for table. Cuts, scars or scars around the blossom end are typical of the defects within this class.

Some tomatoes are rough or irregular in shape. They may not be attractive in appearance but for certain purposes they can be used with little waste. Those tomatoes having growth cracks are all right for immediate consumption but seldom will keep long. Puffy or watery fruit usually is of poor flavor and is wasteful. Puffy tomatoes generally are angular in shape. Another point worth noting before shopping for tomatoes is that immature fruit usually appears shriveled or is angular in form and has a whitish-green color.

A booklet of tomato recipes will be given free by sending a post card to the Consumers' Information Service, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Peter G. Ten Eyck, Commissioner, Albany, New York.

Pattern No. 1541-B

Simple Street Dress
With Interesting
Neck Treatment

This dress is, of course, a version of the popular shirtwaist style, which has taken the fashion world by storm. It is a good frock for the mature figure, having been designed from that point of view. The long line of the blouse is particularly good, and the scarf becoming, older women not taking kindly to the high necklines that are worn by young things. The blouse is quite simple, darts at the shoulder insuring the perfect fit of the garment. Sleeves are long, and plain, not too tight for the skin tight sleeve is no longer with us. The skirt has pleats at the side seams, width enough, and flare enough to coincide with the new feeling for the wider silhouette.

Thin wool, with a touch of velvet is extremely good for this model, the trimming being either the same or a contrasting color.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1541-B is designed in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54-inch material, and 3/4 yard of 39-inch material for contrast.

A Crocheted Blouse in a Lacy Stitch

PATTERN 5426

The individuality of this crocheted shirtmaker blouse doubles its charm, and when you find how easy it is to make, you'll want to go right on and crochet a plain skirt for it, too (pattern 5363). Then you'll have a two-piece ensemble to wear right through the Fall and Winter. The lacy stitches which compose the entire blouse is very quickly learned by heart, and a grand one to add to your crochet repertoire. The blouse has raglan sleeves, which are so easy to fashion, while the pretty bow is made of strands of the same wool. The buttons make a smart trim, and sleeves may be either short or long.

In pattern 5426 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements. The blouse comes in sizes 16-18 and 35-40. Price of pattern 10c.

In pattern 5353 you will find complete instructions for making the skirt shown in sizes 16-18 and 35-40; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements. Price of pattern 10c.

To obtain these patterns send 10 cents each (20 cents for both) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 269 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

HURRICANE VICTIMS BURIED AT MIAMI

In these plain pine boxes lie the unidentified bodies of World War veterans who died when the hurricane swept their Florida Keys rehabilitation camps. They are shown in Woodlawn Park cemetery, at Miami, where 90 of the recovered bodies had been taken for burial. Red Cross estimates the death toll at 256, with about 200 of them war veterans. TROPICAL STORM WRECKS FISHING LODGE

This is all that remains of the Long Key lodge, fashionable fishing resort, after the terrific hurricane which swept the Florida Keys a few days ago. “Why Bobbie, what did you do to that blouse?””

Yes, Bobbie's clothes are pretty much hors de combat. So are Elinor's. But remember, Mother, it's been a strenuous summer. And, anyhow, you wouldn't exchange those coats of healthful tan they're wearing for many times the cost of the clothes they've romped into tatters.

Furthermore, replenishing the children's wardrobe is not such a purse-wrecking task. In fact, even in the price-climbing times, youngsters can be outfitted at surprisingly small cost—IF you watch the advertisements.

Frocks, suits, coats, knickers, hats, shoes, stockings, blouses, jackets, underwear—don't buy them blindly. Makers and merchants are constantly putting their best values forward. The place to find them is right here in this newspaper.... And the time to buy is right now—in September.

Read the advertisements as carefully as you do the regular news and editorial columns. They, too, are “news”.... news directly addressed to you—in the interest of your family and your pocketbook.

When you get thoroughly disgusted with yourself as you reflect on some of your past foolishness, thank goodness you were not born one of identical twins.

Daddy, after a hard day's work, had settled in his favorite chair and was reading his newspaper. Mother was mending and little Ethel was left to her own devices.

Ethel (bursting out)—Oh, Mother Dear, may I say something? Mother (firmly)—No, Ethel, you know it is against the rule to talk when Daddy Dear is reading. You must wait till he has finished.

To make the lesson more effective, father went on for some time. Then he laid down the paper and asked: Daddy—Now, dear, what is it you wanted to say?

Ethel (coldly)—It doesn't matter much now. I only wanted to say I couldn't turn off the bathroom spigot, and all the water's running down the stairs.

Can The Can'ts
In fighting the battles of life, perhaps it has occurred.
That it's better to can the can'ts, for can is a better word.

Don't value your labor too cheap, don't use the word can't when you can.

For effort's the yardstick to use, when your measure the works of man.

If you're really determined to win, be ready to do or die, For the thing that the world will get is the fact that you're willing to try.

In the daily struggle of men, it is easy to see at a glance, Success is measured by cans, and failure determined by can'ts.

Doctor—Look here, don't you know my consulting hours are from 6 to 7 p. m.?

Patient—Yes, but the dog that bit me didn't.

The wise man listens and sifts. He hears as he goes about with responsive ears many things that are pure "hokey." But occasionally he gets something that's worth while, and he gets it only by listening.

An inquisitive lady was always asking her minister questions. One day she asked:

Lady—Preacher, can you tell me, please, the difference between cherubim and seraphim?

Minister (thinking deeply for a minute or two)—Well, they had a difference, madam, but they have made it up.

We're all quite certain we could handle the other fellow's job better than he is doing. We're not so sure about our own.

Employer—And when you have got the number of working hours down to the minimum, what then?

Walking Delegate—Oh, we'll strike for the 30-minute hour.

It were better to dwell in a strange land, away from friends, kindred and many other environments that make life worth while, if you can make a living in the latter and can't do it in your home community.

A fool is a man who insists that he is right even after you have expressed an opposite opinion.

Manager (to small applicant for job)—What position did you hold in your last job?

Boy (seriously)—I was a doer.

Manager—A doer? Whatever's that?

Boy—Well, sir, when my boss wanted anything done he would tell the cashier, the cashier would tell the bookkeeper, the bookkeeper would tell the junior clerk, and the clerk would tell me.

Manager—And what would happen then?

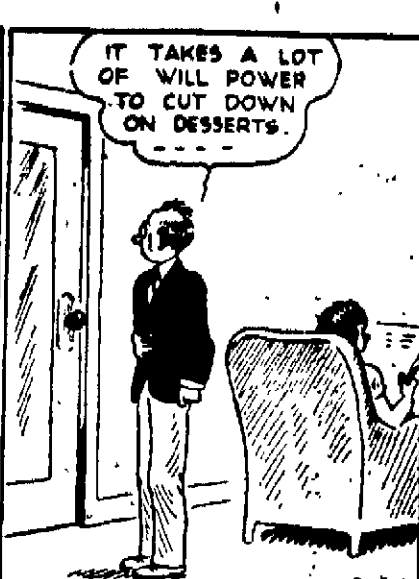

Boy—As I hadn't anybody to tell, I'd do it.

Well, the country is getting old enough so that a statesman can get along fairly well without having been born in a log cabin.

Most fish would be larger if the fisherman's arms were longer.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The "face on the cutting room floor" has had its share of attention in the Hollywood storybook, and it's time for a little lament on the face's companion of the talkies. "The voice on the cutting room floor" deserves a break, and here it is.

In the cutting rooms, where thousands of feet of celluloid are cut down to feature length and assembled into the picture you see, whole scenes frequently are eliminated, and the work of many a hopeful actor drops to the floor in the process, carrying with it, often, his hopes. "She was just a face on the cutting room floor" is a useful refrain in Cienega City.

As The Face Goes . . .

The "voice on the cutting room floor" is a regular chorus by the time a film has been edited and assembled. It is a composite voice, including words of stars, directors, script clerks, prop-men, stand-ins, and various assistants as well as lines spoken by the unfortunate "face on the cutting room floor."

Most of these voices know when they speak where they will end. A director is making a close-up of an actor. Another actor or actors may be in the scene with him—on the screen—but actually they may be on a holiday, off call, this day. So the director, or the script girl, or someone, reads lines to the close-up actor so that his own speeches may be properly spaced and timed. Of course the "mike" catches everything that is said, but the cutter attends to the superfluous voice later. He snips it off the sound track.

Each scene ends with the director's "Cut!" and that gets snipped. Each scene begins with the official clicker—the man who stands before the camera under the "mike" and "marks" the scene with the clack of two boards while he says, "Tut-tut, Scene 8, Take 1" or "Bor- sage, Scene 10, Take 3." He is the most consistent face—and voice—on the cutting room floor.

For Private Shows

And then there are the exclamations of actors who have "blown up" in their lines during a "take." These range from a hearty "I'm sorry!" to an expressive explosion of disgust or anger.

These and latter voices—intimate records of how your favorite stars react in the privacy of their sound stages to momentary failure—go on the cutting room floor with the rest of the medley. But not always. For pranks cutters have been known to save these scraps, compiling them into little "shorts" far funnier than those the studios release. Unhappily, these are never shown except in private.

Valley of the Kings in

Famous Carlsbad Caverns

In Carlsbad Caverns, where the Mojaves fought with the turbaned Yumas, lies the American Valley of the Kings. Created as a national park by the government, it was brought to the attention of the world by scientists in 1925, and there is nothing to show that the ancestors of the Pueblos, who still inhabit the region, ever penetrated beyond the giant entrances.

A zig-zag pathway leads down to the underground. At the end of the corridor there is an elevator which carries visitors 750 feet below the surface. "Passing beyond and below enormous folds of frozen drapery, where the stalactites have grown together in perfect theater curtain formation, one beholds a Wagnerian stage setting in glowing onyx with lighting effects of delicate pink and rose supported by ghostlike totem pole corridors, which lead upward into the misty vaults of cathedral domes. From the subterranean basement miles of intricate galleries and passageways extend through the chambers.

Two great royalty chambers, the king and queen's rooms, are surrounded by throne rooms. Beyond are the rows of temple rooms resembling ancient Egypt, flanked by palaces and altars. Nature dramatically lights the scenes through thousands of fluted shafts, which produce the color spectrum.

In the Gila Valley is the "Primitive City," where excavations have revealed tombs and edifices similar to the discoveries in the Vale of Anahuac accredited to the migrating Aztecs.

Alcohol in Body Cannot

Ignite, Chemists Assert

According to popular belief, the body of a person soaked with alcohol is combustible. Cases of the spontaneous combustion of the body have been reported, especially in France, when the first instance of this kind is said to have happened in 1725.

The spontaneous burning of an alcohol-soaked body is a popular belief in Romania, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Prof. A. Effer of Cluj, in a lecture before the Hygienic society, is reported by the Bucharest correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association as saying that "in past centuries it was earnestly deemed possible that the alcohol laden breath of a tippler may catch fire from the glow of an oven or even from his own pipe."

In 1867, the Countess Gorilla was said to have become ignited spontaneously in Darmstadt, Germany, and burned to death. A commission whose members included the greatest chemical experts of the age, Lefeb and Blachod, studied this case and completely refuted the theory of spontaneous combustion.

Broadway: "Alice Adams". Katherine Hepburn rises to new emotional glory in this adaptation from the Booth Tarkington novel of the same name, and with suave direction, a brilliant cast of supporting players, and excellent camera treatment, this love story of a girl becomes screen entertainment of distinction. Never was Miss Hepburn more beautiful and more at home than in the little role and she plays through the joys and tragedy of Alice Adams with a realism bordering near to genius. And Fred Stone plays a close second to the star in a characterization that brings out a talent known along Broadway for over a decade. Others featured include the likable Fred MacMurray and Evelyn Venable.

Orpheum: "Let's Live Tonight" and "Circumstantial Evidence." In an effort to be chucked full of continental sophistication, the first feature has numerous subtle lines and the action of a snail after rousing from a sound sleep. It tells of a young girl who falls in love with a mysterious stranger and she later finds out he is the brother of the man she is engaged to marry. Lillian Harvey, Tullio Carminati, Janet Heiter and Tala Birell, "Circumstantial Evidence" offers Shirley Grey and Chick Chandler in a story of crime and its detection.

Kington: "We're in the Money". Those two Warner Brothers cutups, Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell, are turned loose in a brand new plot situation in this, their latest comedy contribution to humanity, and wonderful to relate, the two young women are really funny in a show of hilarity and originality. It is the

Republicans Say U. S. Industry in Need of A Complete Rest Cure

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Republican National Committee says industry wants "a complete rest cure" not just a "breathing spell" resorted to by President Roosevelt.

Referring to the President's exchange of letters with Roy Howard, publisher, the committee said in its weekly pamphlet yesterday the letters "breed fear instead of inspiring confidence."

At St. Charles, Mo., Senator Dickenson (R-Iowa) told a party gathering that the administration's course "can only end in national disaster." He saw the prospect of "crushing taxes and a standard of living likely to be lower rather than higher for the future."

Col. Frank Knox, Chicago Daily News publisher who has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate, said in Boston that "it would require more than verbal assurance . . . to bring about that restoration of confidence which is essential to permanent recovery."

Col. Knox said that because of the New Deal's "Reputation" of "the platform upon which the Democrats appealed to the people and upon which they won their election . . . the mere promise of the president is by no means sufficient."

Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, speaking at Chicago, described the "breathing spell" statement as "the boldest admission that the communistic government in Washington had had its hands at the throat of American business."

To Senate Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson, who commented on the statement at Little Rock, Ark., the president's letter "indicates that the program for counteracting the depression is substantially complete."

The Republican National committee's pamphlet said the exchange of letters "more likely was designed to afford Mr. Howard a freshly laundered alibi for keeping his newspaper chain narrowly partisan in its support of the President and give it an excuse in advance for advocating his renomination and election."

"There is nothing to the President's letter," it continued, "to which the confidence of men of affairs can make fast. He reiterates the fundamental fallacy of the New Deal—that it is impossible to distinguish between recovery and reform."

"Because of that blind obsession, the Roosevelt administration, in the name of reform, unleashed forces destructive of our sound and legitimate economic structure, which made it impossible to have business recovery and which are justifiably accountable for the hostility and fright which Mr. Howard himself admits now pervade the world of business, finance and industry."

Bloodhounds Are Used To Track Woman

When the maid was unable after a brief search to find Miss Reeve returned to the Chase home and gave the alarm. A party was quickly organized and the search was commenced. Sergeant James Cunningham was also notified and with Trooper Keefe went to the scene after notifying Sheriff Saxe. Deputy Sheriff Clayton Vredenburg was sent to the scene and there accompanied by Deputy Sheriff George Reynolds of Woodstock and several local residents a search was made but no trace of the missing woman was found. Later the posse was joined by Troopers Reilly and Metzger and the searchers made several trips into the woods during the night following several trails.

Telephone headquarters were set up at Ashokan and Floyd Terwilliger of Ashokan acted as messenger between the phone service and the searchers on the mountain, the distance being about 3 miles. Through this method the posse was kept in communication with other searchers and finally Sergeant Cunningham decided to have Sergeant John Lockhart at Highland teletype Hawthorne barracks for bloodhounds.

While the searchers continued their all night search in the woods, making at least three separate trips up the mountain over the rocky trails, Troopers from Hawthorne came to the scene with two bloodhounds. They arrived at the scene about 4 o'clock in the morning and at daybreak started up the mountain for the spot where the missing woman had last been seen. There Trooper Horton, in charge of the dogs, gave the hounds the scent and accompanied by Trooper Keefe they followed the hounds up the mountain where they were going for their set a heavy pace over the rough country. It was not long before the two hounds, one on the trail and the other circling back some distance, met near the top of the mountain and at the end of the trail was the woman who had been sought all night.

Much credit must be given the CCC boys who entered in the search with a will as well as several local residents who cooperated in every way with the officials.

Miss Reeve apparently had become confused in following the narrow trail and when day came she became hopelessly lost. It was about 7 o'clock Sunday morning when she was found and brought off the mountain. Dr. Cohen of Ashokan was called to give medical aid to the young woman but after an examination he found she apparently had suffered but little from her night spent in the open.

The cooperation given by officers during the night was most gratifying to all and the promptness with which the Hawthorne barracks of K troop responded with the bloodhounds is appreciated by the friends and relatives of the missing woman.

FIRE DESTROYED BARN AT WALLKILL SATURDAY

Damage estimated at $10,000 was caused shortly after 8 Saturday morning, when fire of unknown origin destroyed two large barns on the farm of William Melchke, about a mile east of Wallkill. Seventy tons of hay also were destroyed. Livestock, farm machinery, tools and a large quantity of feed were removed from the buildings. Wallkill Hook and Ladder Co. did fine work in saving a nearby grainery. The barns, one 60 by 40 feet, and the other 40 by 60, were rebuilt about five years ago. They were said to be covered by insurance, while the hay was uninsured.

Six Lose Lives

Fairplay, Colo., Sept. 9 (AP).—The charred ruins of a mine bunkhouse today marked the scene of a desperate struggle by 18 men to escape an early morning fire in which six lost their lives. Three were burned badly as the other workmen battered down iron window gratings to escape. The fire was at the American Lode Gold Mine near Alma, Colo. Sunday morning, caused by an overheated stove. "It was impossible to get out the door," said Harry Mandell, 29. "The other men and I tore at the window bars and beat on it with benches. . . . It was a matter of two seconds—either you made it or you were dead. They all couldn't make it."

Ethiopia Knows No White Conqueror

Nation's Long History A Chronicle Of Constant Warfare

By CHARLES NORMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Ethiopia, with "one foot in the Middle Ages and the other in the League of Nations," presents a vivid contrast to the rest of Africa.

Elsewhere on the Dark Continent the white man is respected as conqueror and modernizer; in the land of Emperor Haile Selassie the white man is neither conqueror nor builder, for he has been defeated there.

The history of Ethiopia, a chronicle of constant warfare, best explains its seemingly anomalous position in the twentieth century. A country almost continuously busy on the field of battle has found little time for progress and modernization.

Wars Were Many

It has fought and defeated the Arabians, Egyptians, Turks, Doriches and neighboring races and tribes of every description—the Adels, Danakils, Gallas and others—and in modern times inflicted severe defeats on the Sudanese and Italians.

The Ethiopians have lived surrounded by enemies. They have seen a combination of great European powers take their ports and their coastline away, and have been cut off in this and other ways from the world and progress.

Their ships, which centuries ago ploughed through the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean with their country's products, are now dim memories in the minds of the people.

Glory In Battle

But they have lost nothing of their pride in their independence and nothing of their prowess as warriors. If war comes, the bustling legions of Mussolini will find fighting men arrayed against them who glory in battle.

"The Abyssinian army," one British observer wrote, "is in effect practically the Abyssinian people, for with the exception of priests and monks every man is an actual or potential soldier—love of fighting is in his blood."

For centuries Ethiopia has fought its battles for freedom from invasions by other African tribes or the soldiers of European nations. For centuries it clung to ancient traditions, even its soldiers refusing to recognize changing methods of warfare. But under Emperor Haile Selassie, the old order, represented by the "soldiers" pictured below, is passing. In its place is coming a modern fighting machine, typified by the two members of Ethiopia's air force seen above.

Today the priests have volunteered to fight. If war comes in September, as some military experts predict, it will come at the end of the rainy season, which lasts from about mid-June to the end of September. The rains come suddenly and in torrents, making roaring streams out of roads, beds, and cease with suddenness, too.

Europe Is Convinced Mussolini Will Fight

Free State had withdrawn in favor of the Czech.

When he took the chair, Benes declared it would be a great mistake "to conceal the dangers of the present hour." However, he said: "I have faith that pacification is not outside the possibilities."

Following Benes' seating, the assembly adjourned until 8 p. m. Prior to the voting, Rula Guinazu said:

"This anxiety which among other forms takes that of the measures of rearmament is prolonging the economic crisis which weighs so heavily upon the people."

However, he said, the League of Nations has not given up in its efforts to help the world to economic recovery.

"The League is essentially a governmental organization and its progress depends upon the effective desire of the governments to use its machinery and upon their readiness to adjust their national policies within spheres in which international action is required."

The chairman warned that secret diplomacy must give a place to such relations, adding:

"More than ever in a time like the present, when the sky is once more overcast, the whole world in deep anxiety turns its eyes to Geneva and we must be firmly resolved to do all that lies in our power to render the League fully effective."

Rula Guinazu, after referring to the resignation of Japan, emphasized that disarmament has come to a standstill.

Movements Reported.

Addis Ababa, Sept. 9 (P)—An Ethiopian government communiqué today said "telegrams from the northern frontier show that the Italians are making important troop movements on the Ethiopian and Eritrean frontier, indicating early offensive against Ethiopia."

Emperor Haile Selassie, it was learned on the highest authority today, has instructed the Ethiopian delegation at Geneva to reject outright all solutions thus far proposed by the powers for the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

These formulas include a tripartite mandate over Ethiopia, as suggested by France, with League of Nations guaranteeing Ethiopia's independence and territorial integrity; France's proposal for an Italian protectorate similar to that of the British in Iraq, and an international police force similar to the one that occupied the Saar before its restoration to Germany.

The emperor made it clear to the delegates that Ethiopia will go down fighting rather than accept any of the conditions now proposed, even if the League is dragged down with it. The emperor's decision followed a consultation with his "brain trust," including Everett Andrews Colson, his American financial adviser, who urged him to maintain an iron front against the various peace schemes emanating from Geneva.

Forsts Defeat the Hurons In Final Game at Kristic Field

The sun went down under a cloud for the Huron Indians at Kristic Field, Rosendale, Sunday afternoon, when they lost their final home game of the season, the Forests defeating them by a score of 9 to 4. The big damage was done in the first inning when the Packers got after Hornbeck, the Huron pitcher, for six hits, which with a walk and two errors, gave them a six run lead at the start of the game. After the first inning Hornbeck settled down and pitched good ball, but it was too late.

Van Buren was in the box for the Forests and held the Indians to eight hits, which were scattered. He was credited with seven strike-outs, and also made two of his team's ten safe hits. Yonnett, the Huron right fielder, did some good work in the field and pounded out the only two-bagger scored.

Work was to start today on improving Kristic Field so that a return game cannot be played there this season.

Mt. Tremper, Cullen Pitching, Whitewashes Chichester by 1-0

Dick Dulin's sizzling double into right field in the ninth drove in "Speed" Scherer with the run that gave Mt. Tremper a 1 to 0 victory over Chichester and broke up a great pitchers' battle between Johnny Cullen, the winning hurler, and "Red" Lane, the vanquished, at Mt. Tremper Sunday afternoon.

It was a hectic battle from start to finish and the game was halted several times to prevent battles between both players and spectators. Johnny Cullen pitched unbeatable ball allowing only three hits, one of the scratch variety, to keep the visitors in check. He was in trouble only once, in the fourth, when Bennett and Smith reached third and second on two errors and an infield out, but Bennett was out at the plate on a squeeze play and Simmons grounded out to end the threat.

The Association's blow numerous scoring chances until the ninth when "Call Me Curley" Scherer got his third hit of the game and tallied home on Dulin's smash to right.

Scherer led the sticklers with a double and two singles while Lamb and Cullen had two hits to ring in second for the Association's.

Yesterday's victory was the second of the season for Mt. Tremper over Chichester, this club having defeated the mill town representatives in a 10-inning battle on their own diamond a couple of months ago. Chichester recently handed the Berardi A. C. city champions, a double defeat in a twin bill staged at Lanesville.

Both teams were guests of the Mt. Tremper-Mt. Pleasant Sports Association at a clambake held after the game.

Three Bull Terriers From Ulster Victors

At the 11th annual dog show of the Storm King Kennel Club, held under the auspices of the American Kennel Club, at the Kenridge Farm race track, Cornwall, Saturday, three dogs from Ulster county won prizes.

The dogs, entered by John B. McCabe of Wallkill, were Krakton Kusso, blue ribbon winner in the limit class for bull terriers, dogs over 35 pounds, Sheridan Dutchess, judged the best in novice class and best in winners and best of breed for bull terriers; and Sheridan Boakra, second in local class.

Mr. McCabe, showing his three dogs, won four blue ribbons, a gold medal and one second, which is an accomplishment any dog fancier could be proud of.

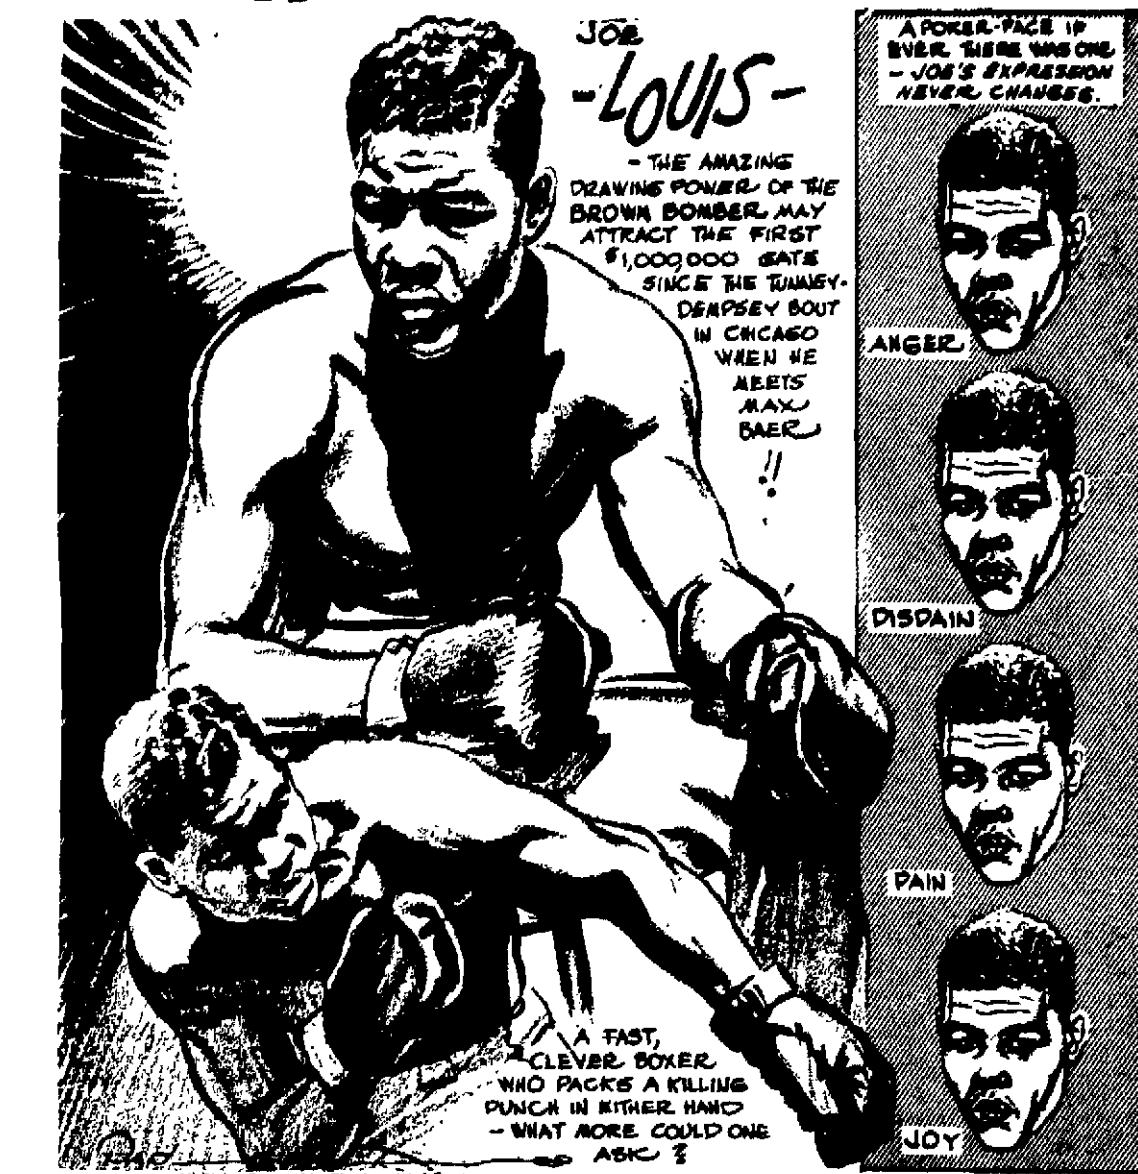

The dogs shown by Mr. McCabe were bred by Charles Hitt, oldtime boxer of Albany, who has been interested in bull terriers for more than 20 years. He is well known throughout the sports world, having been one of the first boxers to go to Europe.

Connelly Aces Lick Apple Knockers, 7-6

Sunday morning at the Fair Grounds, Manager Bechtol's fast stepping Connelly Aces met Art Kaplan's Apple Knockers for the second time and again defeated them 7-6. The score was 6-1 at the end of the seventh inning and neither team was able to score until the Aces' half of the 14th when Ed McKinley singled, bringing in Harry Rice. C. Clair, main gun in the Aces offensive, managed to gather 4 hits out of 5 trips to the plate while Don Kelly and Pete Bruck featured for the losers with homers. The Aces outlasted the Apple Knockers 24-14. Harry Rice, former Yonkers High School ace twirler, and C. Clair formed the Aces' battery. Art Kaplan pitched for his own team and Don Kelly caught.

Tonight at Cordis' Flats the Aces will tangle with the Cordis Aces team.

Punch Appeal

The STANDINGS

The National League pennant battle was as keen as ever today with the Cardinals and Cubs setting a pace that the Giants were finding hard to follow; the Tigers, despite a setback, still had a clear path to the American League flag; but the real news of the day was that the Browns were out of the cellar.

Few teams have had more dismal prospects than Rogers Hornsby's team did early this season, but by dint of persistent trading on the manager's part and hard work by the players the Browns have been built up into a quite formidable organization. They stepped out yesterday to beat over the fading Athletics in a doubleheader, 9 to 4 and 7 to 5 to move a half game ahead of Philadelphia into seventh place.

Washington conquered Detroit's league leaders 4 to 3, attacking Roxie Lawson, Clever Tiger Rookie, in the late innings and getting the winning run on a ninth-inning walk.

The New York Giants, safely out of third place in the National League by trimming Pittsburgh 3 to 1 on the combination of Carl Hubbell's six-hit hurling and four straight hits by Manager Bill Terry.

The victory enabled the Giants to pick up a half game on both the rivals, and place one game behind the Cubs, whose game with Boston was rained out, and 2 1/2 games behind the Cards.

St. Louis divided an odd doubleheader with the Phillies. Dizzy Dean pitched a four hit shutout in the opener and his 25th victory of the season, winning 11 to 0. Then five more hurlers combined on another four-hit job only to have the Phils win it 4 to 2 by bunching two of the blows with a walk and two errors in the second inning. Poor base running and Orville Jorgens' effectiveness in the pinches left 16 Cardinals on the bases.

The Boston Red Sox regained fourth place in the American League by taking a bargain bill from Chicago's White Sox, 6 to 2 and 5 to 2. The Yankees managed to reduce Detroit's lead to 8 1/2 games by taking two last-minute decisions from Cleveland. They won the opener in the tenth 3 to 2 and the afterpiece in the ninth 5 to 4. Two were out each time when the odd run scored.

Brooklyn protected fifth place in the National from Cincinnati's threats with a double victory over the Reds 5 to 4 and 6 to 4.

Wes Ferrell and Ferrell, Red Sox, was pitched 22nd victory of season and with Rick accounted for all six Boston runs in first victory over White Sox.

Dizzy Dean, Cardinals and Orville Jorgens, Phillies—Dean blanked Phils with four hits for 25th victory; Jorgens hurled effectively to win second game.

Joe Kuhel, Senators—Made two hits against Tigers, driving in run with first and starting winning rally with second.

French Nordacatay, Dodgers—Scored five runs in twin triumph over Reds.

Sam West and Ed Coleman, Browns—West knocked in four runs; Coleman scored six as team beat Athletics twice.

Carl Hubbell and Bill Terry, Giants—Hubbell held Stripes to six hits; Terry led attack with four straight blows.

Joe Hill and Len Gohrke, Yankees—Hill's tenth inning hit drove in winning run in first game; Gohrke belted 25th homer in second against Indians.

Slim Willie McFarlane Wins at Glens Falls

Glens Falls, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Slim Willie McFarlane, 45-year-old veteran Tuckahoe, N. Y., shotmaker who beat Bobby Jones in the National Open in 1923, has finally achieved a seven year's quest—a Glens Falls open victory.

Smashing all records for the intricate, hilly course, McFarlane shot final rounds of 67 and 66 yesterday to win the seventh annual 72-hole tourney with an aggregate 274, or 18 under par.

He beat Tony Manero of Greenboro, N. C., 1920 winner, by six strokes and won the $3,000 prize money.

Tied for third money at 244 were Manerum, Pittsburgh shotmaker, and Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y., 1922 victor, while a stroke back was Jerry Glanville of Lexington, Mass.

Following were Felix Serafin of Scranton, Pa., and Herman Barron of White Plains, 247; Jack Paterson of New Rochelle and John Kinder of Ashbury Park, N. J., 248; John Root of Rahway, N. J., and Harry T. 247.

Most of the Ballyhoo aimed to "smoke up" interest in the coming Joe Louis-Max Baer bout is concentrated on building up Baer to the point where the ticket-buying public will think the former title-holder will have a chance of beating the Brown Bomber. As for Louis, the public apparently has already accepted him as a fast, clever boxer who is capable of tossing a knock-out punch with either fist. He needs little "building up" after the workmanlike manner in which he belted off the giant Carnera and the frightened King Levinsky.

A very unusual situation when you stop and think about it. Here is a youngster barely over 21, with little over a year's experience in the professional ranks, preparing to meet a man who, a couple of months ago held the world heavyweight championship and who was rated by many as a great champion by virtue of his devastating punch; yet the burden of proof rests on the shoulders of the veteran, Louis certainly was not long in convincing the folks of his ring greatness.

"Shuffle" Joe is Fast
Everyone asks what chance Baer has of beating the Negro. That's a hard one to answer.

Just assume that all the nice things that have been said about Louis' boxing ability are true. Baer has never shown to advantage against a man with even a fair knowledge of the fine points of ring manship. Just take his bout with Jim Braddock. Max could do nothing to overcome Braddock's jabbing and circling tactics. Against the clever Tommy Loughran, Max was completely at a loss.

Baer packs plenty of dynamite but most of his punch rests in his right hand, which he throws in a wide, sweeping arc. If it lands it is certain to damage. But it is difficult to see how he is going to beat Louis, a left-hooper, to the punch. Louis, in his peculiar shuffling fashion, is fast. Probably lots faster than Max. And that advantage in speed is vital when it comes to putting over a winning punch.

Movies Convinced "Kingfish"
The Negro lad from Detroit masks his punches. He gives no hint of where his punches are coming from. He seems to hit from nowhere and everywhere, long and short. Some of the boys he tagged are still trying to figure out what hit them. Levinsky insisted on seeing the movies of his bout with Louis just to find out what happened after Joe hit him that first punch.

The bomber's complete lack of emotion is little short of amazing. His expression never changes. He deals out punishment and takes it with his feelings completely masked. Outside the ring he appears to be indifferent to the applause and adulation of the crowd, even to the point of looking bored. Max is the actor who delights in giving his facial expressions a free rein.

The "build up" of Max Baer goes merrily on. Perhaps it is legitimate and Max will out the ring a new fighter but I doubt that. A leopard does not change his spots nor does a mature fighter change his style overnight.

Thomas and Moose Lead Stamford Batters

Batting and fielding averages received from Business Manager Irvin Thomas of the Stamford Record, show that Bill Thomas, who has been pitching superbly for the mountain club, has the highest average in batting, .449. Bill Moore, his receiver, is next with an impressive .403. O'Hall, Spaulding and Raynor complete the first five.

During the past season Stamford has played 22 games. It won 14, lost seven and tied one. Thomas during his short stay on the team won six and lost two.

Increasing Interest In Ulster County Gun Club Activities

The four teams of "The Little Skeeet League" have each finished most of the first two strings of the September match at the Ulster County Gun Club.

The club is now shooting on Thursday and Saturday afternoons as the number of shooters has reached the point that all cannot be accommodated on one afternoon.

Several new shooters have joined the club and are making increasingly good scores.

A new bridge has been built at the club ground entrance so the members need no longer be timid about driving into the grounds.

Last Registered Shoot
The fourth and last registered trap shoot will be held at the club Sunday, September 15. A fair attendance has been at the other three registered shoots this year and a larger crowd is expected at this the last one.

Annual Field Day
On October 13, the annual field day of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster county will be held at the Ulster County Gun Club grounds, at which time the county individual and team championships will be shot for.

R. S. Martin of the Ulster County Gun Club holds the individual championship and cup having won it at last year's field day.

The Saugerties Gun Club team won the handicap cup in 1934 and the Ulster County Gun Club team won the scratch cup.

At the county shoot enough merchandise prizes are contributed by the member clubs of the federation so that each shooter is sure of a prize. The value of the prizes won being governed by the score of the shooters.

Upstate Big Three Prime Squads Today
Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Upstate New York's "Big Three" of the gridiron, Colgate, Cornell and Syracuse University, primed their squads today for intensive campaigns which they hope will bring them to the top of the nation's football honor roll.

At Syracuse Coach Vic Hanson, who has been drilling his boys for a week, planned to hold scrimmages by the end of this week. He has been delayed by the unusual amount of conditioning needed by some members of the squad.

Hanson has a fairly good idea of how several positions will be filled but one wing, center and final placing of backs must wait until the candidates demonstrate their ability in contact work.

Coach Gil Doble began his 16th football season at Cornell today with the objective of winning the big Red's 33rd victory when the season opens Sept. 28. St. Lawrence University will provide the opposition.

In 15 years, Doble's teams have won 82 games, lost 30 and tied six. Last year was Doble's worst season, Cornell winning two and losing five, and the big problem is putting a team on the field which will more closely resemble powerful red elevens of earlier years.

Actual practice does not start at Colgate until tomorrow but head Coach Andy Kerr expects 60 players to report this afternoon and prepare for the training grid. Only one player, Bill Davidson of Oklahoma, failed to answer Kerr's call for fall practice.

When the two circuits finish, the winners of both leagues, American and National, will play a major, probably consisting of 2 games. This however, will be solved later by the rival managers.

The managers of the named clubs expect a large turnout of fans as they can realize the manner in which the games have been played throughout the season.

Football Followers Mourn Ted Coy
New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Football followers of a quarter of a century ago today mourned Ted Coy, by many considered the greatest fullback in the history of the game.

He died yesterday at the age of 47. Funeral will be held Wednesday at the Broadway Tabernacle church. Coy played for Yale in 1907, 1908 and 1909, and was twice placed on Walter Camp's annual All-American team. Frank H. Davis and Camp both selected him for fullback on their respective All-time All-American teams.

He died in New York hospital of Lobar Pneumonia after a heart attack.

A Michigan congressman complained that Uncle Sam is making too much money out of the POLIO. Shame on the government for making money on anything.

Notable of Auburn, Mass., 249. Out of the money were the veteran Walter Bacon, T. S. Ryder Cup captain, and George Paul Nungun of White Plains, with .292, and Jimmy Thompson of Ridgewood, N. J., with .287.

Young Republicans To Take Active Part

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP)—Young Republicans of New York were pledged today to take an active part in the current G. O. P. campaign to win control of the state Assembly.

Plans for the participation of the younger members of the party in the drive now being held by the state committee and Melvin C. Eaton, state chairman, were drawn up yesterday at a conference here.

Eaton and Assemblyman Irving Ives, minority leader of the Assembly, talked over the campaign with Walter J. Mahoney of Buffalo, president of the association of New York state Young Republican Clubs.

George H. Sibley of New York, former president of the association, Harry J. Forhead of Buffalo, Dewitt LeFevre of Beaver Falls, Ralph Becker of Buffalo and Louis Killen of Schenectady.

The meeting, the first held between Eaton and representatives of the association, came as a result of an agreement made at the recent annual convention of the Young Republicans. At that time Chairman Eaton urged a closer working arrangement between the association and the state committee.

A spokesman for the Young Republicans said after yesterday's meeting that his association will aid the state committee by sending speakers with the Republican motor caravan which will tour the state starting October 7, and aid in radio and platform speeches scheduled by the older group.

A statement issued by Eaton and Mahoney after the meeting said that "not only was a better understanding reached between representatives of both groups, but plans were made which, in the opinion of all present, will be most valuable in the present campaign of the Republican party to recapture the Assembly."

WILL OF MOHONK LAKE SUMMER RESIDENT FILED

New York, Sept. 7 (Special).—The late William P. Ritchey of 173 Amity street, Brooklyn, a summer resident of Mohonk Lake where he died August 3rd, left an estate formally described as being "more than $10,000," is was learned today when his will was offered for probate in Kings county surrogates court.

The exact value of the estate is unknown pending an appraisal by the New York State Transfer Tax Department. Under the terms of the will, the widow, Mrs. Emma Louise Ritchey, will receive the income for life from the entire estate.
